Contents

List of Figures page xi
List of Tables xiii
Acknowledgments xv

PART I BACKGROUND AND FRAMEWORK

1 The Rise of the Multiple-Race Population 3
The Identity-to-Politics Link 9
What We Know (and What We Don't Know) About Multiracial Identity 10
Present Approach 13
Structure of the Book 19

2 The Political Construction of Racial Boundaries 21
Citizenship and the Conception of Race in the United States 22
The Post-World War II Era: Civil Rights and the Rise of Identity Politics 29
Racial Boundaries in the Twenty-first Century 34
From Macro-Level Legal Constructions to Micro-Level Self-Identities 42

PART II CONSTRUCTING RACIAL IDENTIFICATION AND IDENTITY

3 Creating Racial Identification 47
Racial Labeling Outcomes: A Snapshot 48
Statistical Model and Results 52
Familial, Sociocultural, and Environmental Influences on Racial Identification 53
Social Identities and Racial Identities 55
Discussion 64

4 Processes of Identity Formation 66
How Families Shape Racial Consciousness 67
School, Neighborhood, and Geographic Region 77
Gendering Race 78
Racial Identities in Flux 81
Appearance, Ascription, and Self-Identity 86
Discussion 94

PART III THE POLITICIZATION OF IDENTITY

5 The Development of Racial Ideologies and Attitudes 99
Bridging Group Identity and Political Behavior 100
Survey Findings 107
Explaining Racial Attitudes 118
Discussion 122

6 The Development of Social Attitudes 123
The Impact of Social Exclusion 124
Parental Influences on Politics 129
Social Attitude Survey Findings 133
Discussion 139

7 Multiple-Minority Biracials and the Construction of Identity 140
Patterns of Identification 142
Social Rejection and Political Attitudes 154
Discussion 158

PART IV CONCLUSIONS

8 The Implications of Multiracialism for American Society and Politics 163
How Biracial Americans are Identifying in the Twenty-first Century 163
Racial Group Attachments and Political Stances 166
Avenues for Additional Research: Multiracialism and the Future of Social Policies 168
Significance of Multiracialism for the Color Line 171

Appendix: Methodological Notes 179
A.1 Measuring Race 179
A.2 Cooperative Institutional Research Program (CIRP) Freshman Survey Methodology 182
A.3 Description of Qualitative Methodology 183
A.4 Chapter 2: Question Wording 191

A.5 Chapter 3: Freshman Survey Question Wording and Response Coding 192
A.6 Chapters 5 and 6: Freshman Survey Question Wording and Response Coding 194

Notes 209
Bibliography 225
Index 243